

Yes. If the bond proposal is approved, the community will have the opportunity to participate in the final planning, design, and implementation of the school buildings. A committee for each building would be created for stakeholders to participate and provide input and feedback.